Epstein Becker & Green, P.C. and The Bank of China
Present a Special Program for Chinese Companies
Doing Business in the United States:

How to Successfully Chart Your Course
In Accordance With U.S. Law

Foreign companies doing business in the United States face a wide range of challenges to entering the marketplace, but with the appropriate counsel these can be easily navigated.

This program offers your company an exciting opportunity to learn the intricacies of U.S. and state laws and what you need to do to be successful. Topics to be discussed include:

- Compliance with U.S. Immigration laws
- Counsel for foreign multinationals doing business in the U.S. on U.S. labor and employment issues
- Advice for multinational and foreign employers regarding expatriate employee contracts and compensation
- Compliance and regulatory matters, including the applicability of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act's whistleblower provisions to your business
- Guidance for management on hiring, termination, employee counseling and discipline
- Defending against charges of discrimination and sexual harassment
- Protecting your company's proprietary information and trade secrets
- Navigating the intricacies of trade practices and customs laws
- Corporate Social Responsibility and Social Compliance Standards
- Effectively dealing with court litigation, including pre-trial discovery, discovery of e-mail and other related matters

In one morning, you can become acquainted with the U.S. laws and practices that affect your business and learn how to guide your company through this ever-changing landscape. The seminar will be interactive, allowing you to pose questions to the attorneys and have your specific concerns addressed.

We hope you can attend this joint program of the Bank of China and Epstein Becker & Green, P.C., and we look forward to seeing you on:

- New York: Tuesday, October 18, 2005 from 8:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Cornell Club
