

EBG New York Briefing: Do You Really Know Who Your Employees Are? Sorting Out Your Exposure From Independent Contractors, Temps, and Other Sources of Risk

New York, New York

December 5, 2006 | Events

As the year comes to an end, and you take stock of your workforce, do you really know which of your workers are your company's employees? Have you properly classified workers who you have declared to be independent contractors? Do those temporary workers you brought in present any personnel issues? What risks do you have in making decisions (like year end bonuses) here in New York that affect the employees you sent on international assignment to a foreign office?