Boston has become one of the nation's biggest health care markets and a center of innovation in life sciences due to a strong commitment from the public and private sectors and the presence of numerous renowned research institutions. Our Boston office plays an important role in the firm's strategy to deliver exceptional legal services to organizations in the health care and life sciences industry and related sectors throughout New England. Drawing on the health care and life sciences capabilities of our team here—and at the firm's other offices in key cities across the nation—our Boston office provides clients with both the prompt, personal service expected from a small firm and the level of talent and experience typical of a national practice.
