Pittsburgh—known as "the Steel City" or "the City of Bridges" because of its 446 bridges—was once a major steel, iron, and glass producer. The city has since transformed itself into an advancing leader in the medicine, education, health care, robotics, software engineering, and high-tech industries. Pittsburgh's thriving business community is just the kind of dynamic economy where Epstein Becker Green's services are most needed.

Attorneys in our Pittsburgh office have substantial experience in employee benefits and other areas of law, and they are dedicated to providing comprehensive legal solutions tailored to the specific needs and challenges of local and regional clients. Several of our attorneys are active in local issues and community programs, affording clients a deeper understanding of the area's political, cultural, and economic climate.
