San Francisco has long been known as home to major corporations and international financial institutions, and as the gateway to the Pacific Rim. The Bay Area, including the nearby “Silicon Valley” cities of San Jose and Palo Alto, has emerged as a global leader in the high-technology and new media industries. San Francisco has also become an important biotechnology and research center.

Our San Francisco office draws on the firm’s national reputation and resources to provide regional clients, as well as national and international clients with business interests on the West Coast, a broad range of legal services to meet their ever-evolving needs.
