Chris Taylor brings his passion and analytical talents to assisting health care clients with a variety of matters, from telehealth and food and drug issues to mergers, acquisitions, and divestitures. He has helped private equity firms identify and quantify the risk of proposed transactions in the health care and life sciences industries. He has also contributed research to state-level regulatory surveys for the use of health care providers seeking to expand geographically.

During and after law school, Chris worked on Capitol Hill, managing a portfolio of legislative issues, including health care matters, for an active member of the House Energy & Commerce Committee, experience he uses to provide clients insight at the crossroads of legal, policy, budgetary, and political factors influencing congressional and federal agency decision-making.
